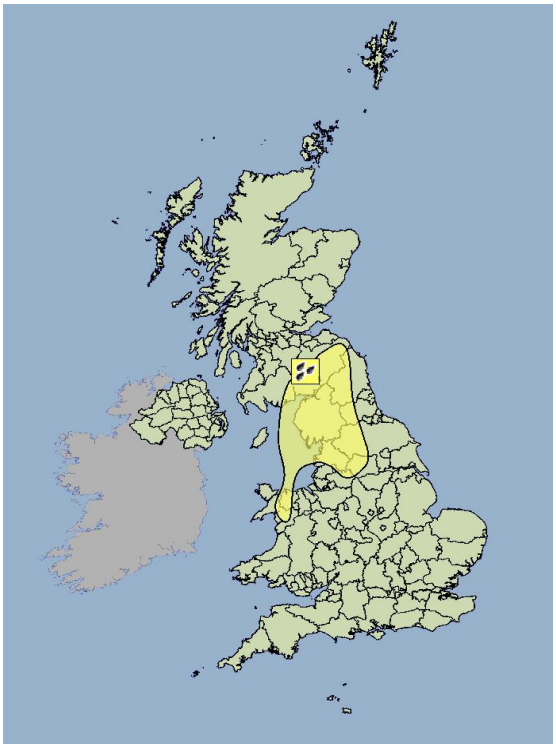
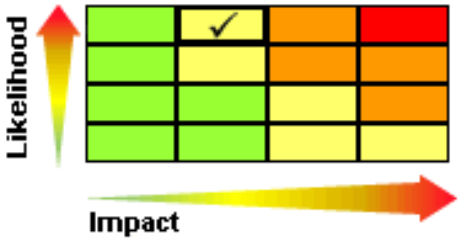
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Heavy and persistent rain is expected across parts of northwest Wales, northern England and southern Scotland on Wednesday before gradually easing during Wednesday night. Many places within the warning area will see 25-50 mm of rain, with around 100 mm possible over higher ground. Heavy rain will gradually clear eastwards during Wednesday night. Heavy rain will be accompanied by strong winds across many parts of the warning area.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 10:00 on Wed, 22nd Nov 2017 until 09:00 on Thu, 23rd Nov 2017

Heavy rain will continue across parts of northwest Wales, northern England and southern Scotland through Wednesday. This will gradually clear from the west overnight into Thursday, finally clearing southeast Scotland on Thursday morning.

Spray and flooding on roads will make journey times longer. Bus and train services will also be affected with journey times taking longer. A few homes and businesses flooded. Strong winds are also expected which could add to the difficult travel conditions.

This is an update to extend the warning area a little further over Lancashire and southeast Scotland as well as delaying the end time into Thursday morning.
